

CAMPUS COWBOYS

Ready to open the chute.

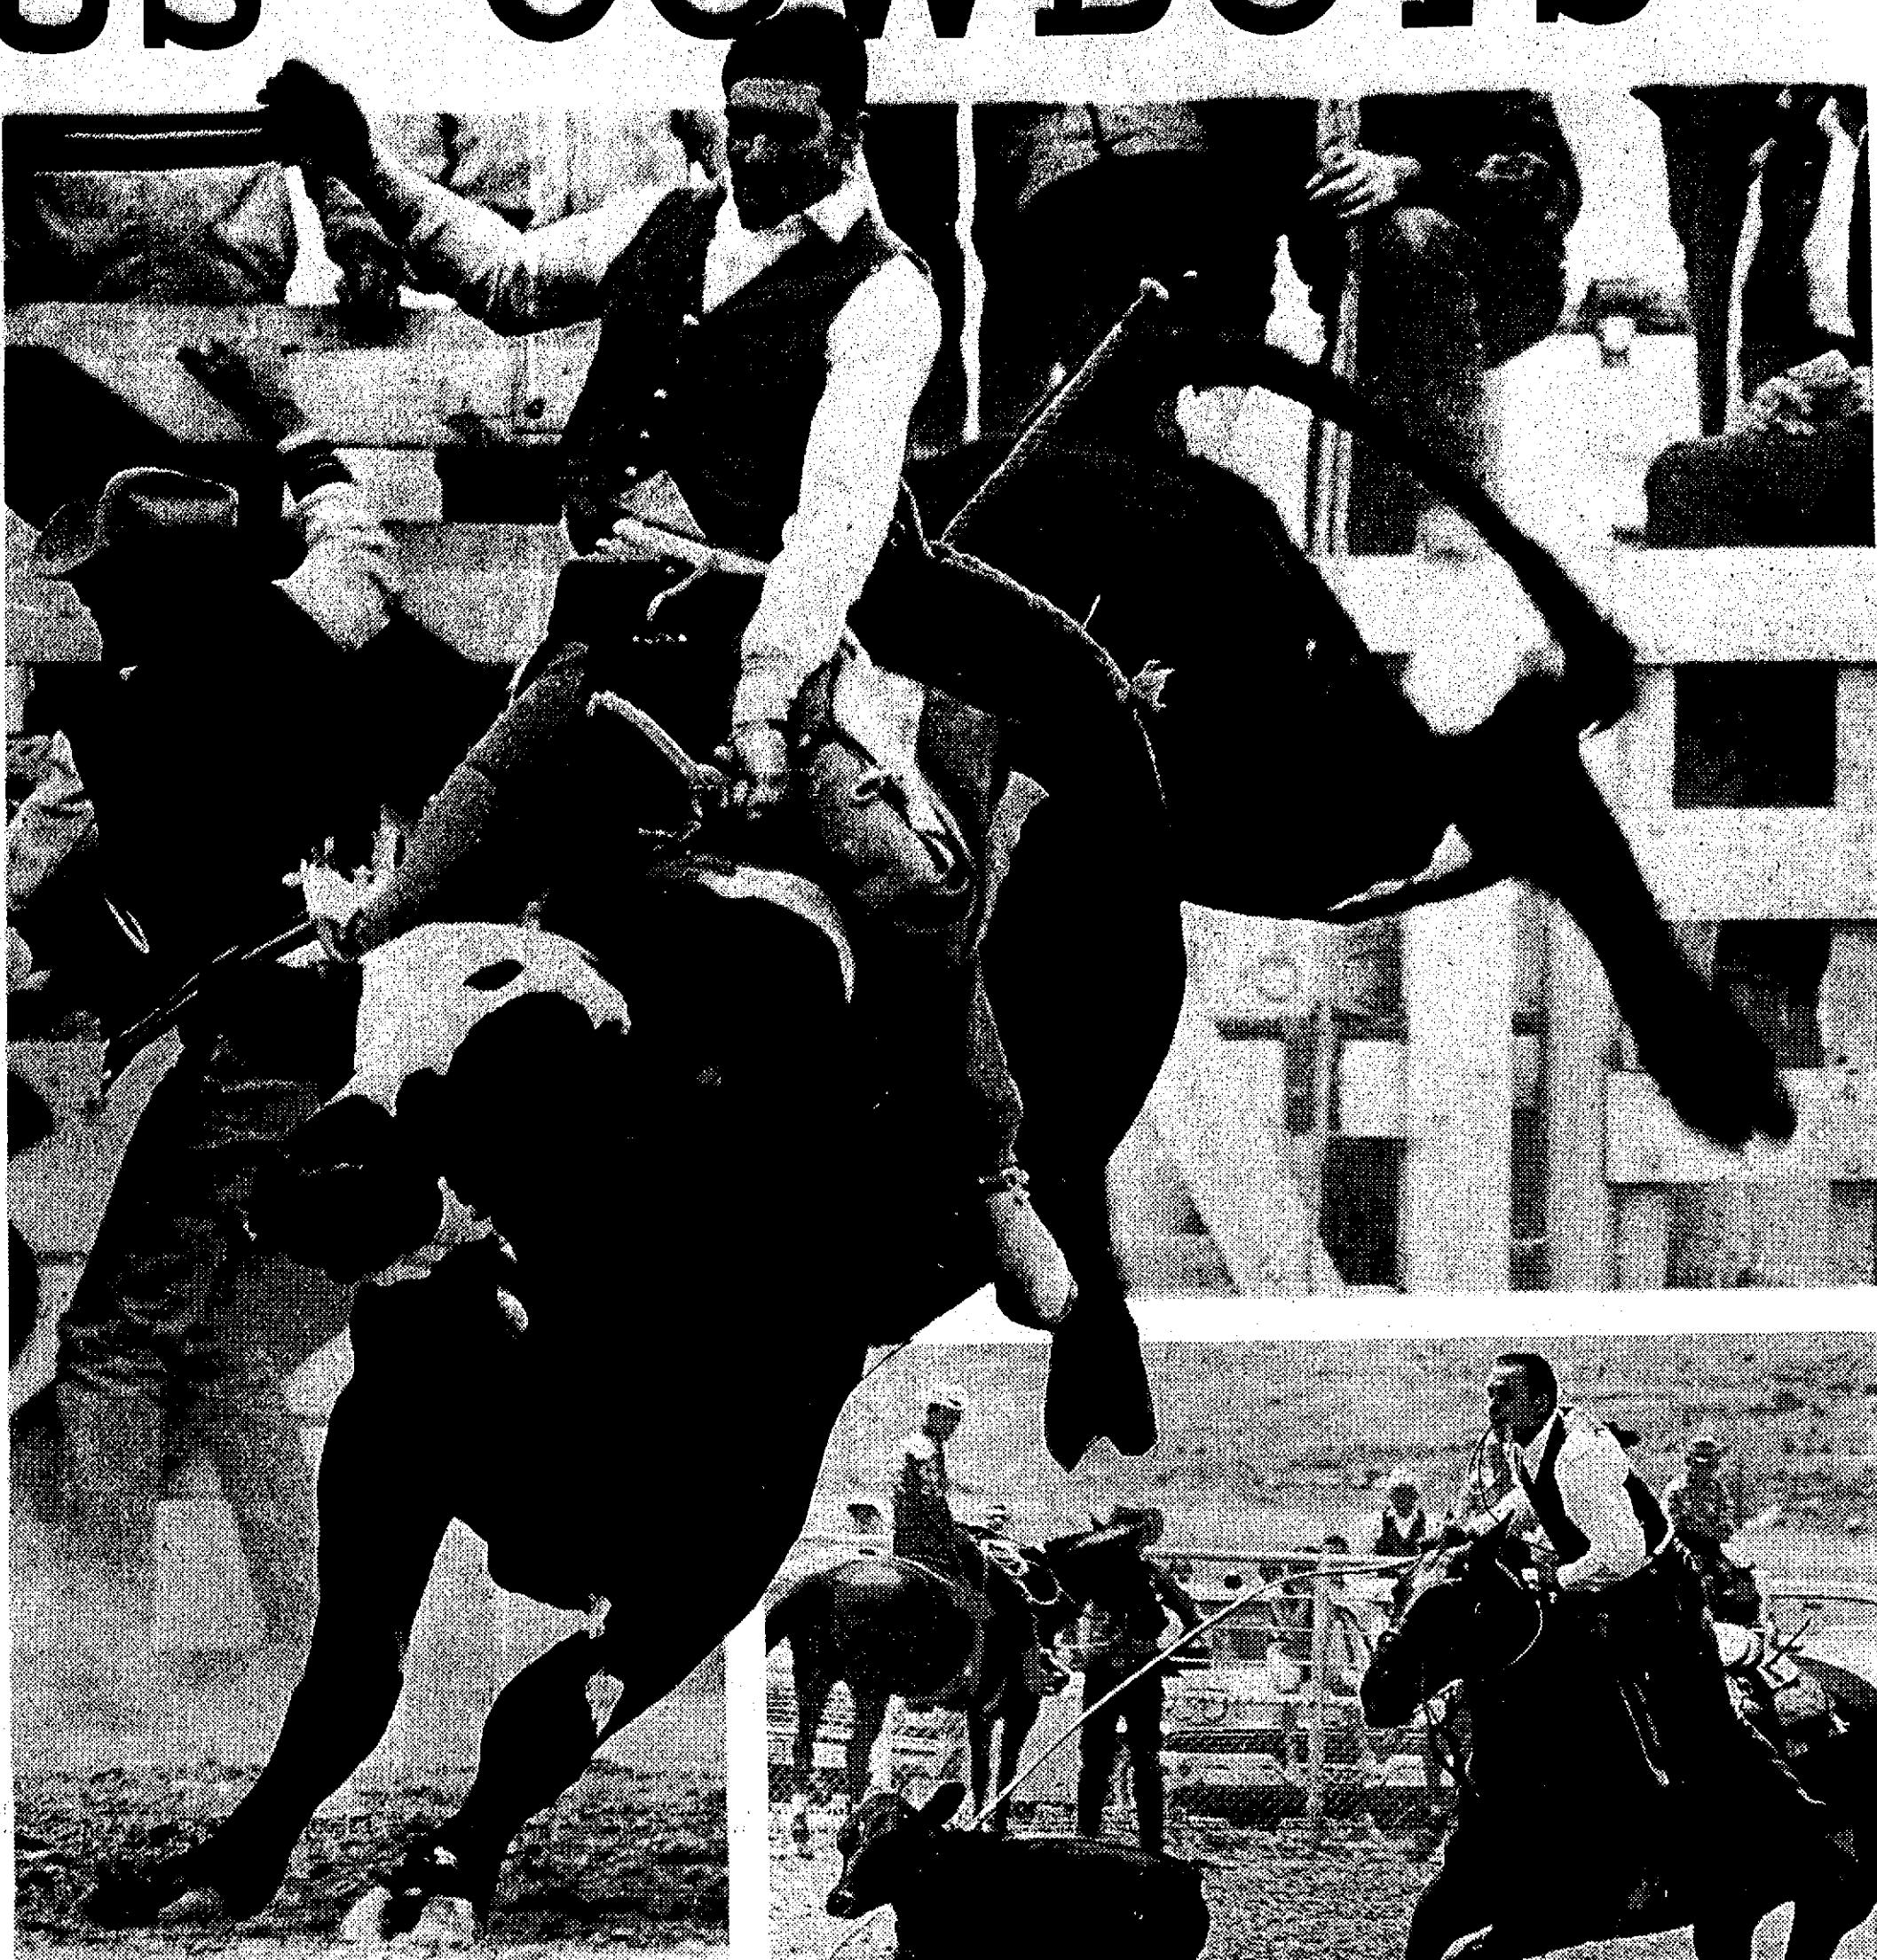

Coming down hard.

The steer got away; the hat remained.

Even the girls get into the spirit of adventure.

The calm atop the storm.

Get along, little doggie.

A smooth beginning.

When the animal stops, the riders sometimes don't.

The beginning of the college academic school year this fall also will begin a series of student rodeos that eventually lead to eligibility in the National Collegiate Rodeo Association "finals."

The NCRA, founded in 1948 "to promote inter-collegiate rodeoing on a national scale by bringing national recognition to this activity as an organized and standard collegiate sport," has now approximately 1,500 students, from over 81 schools, competing.

Divided into eight regions which cover the Plains, Southern and Western areas of America, the rodeo circuit features events like calf-roping, ribbon-roping, bulldogging (steer wrestling), bare-back bronc riding, saddle bronc riding and bull or steer riding.

It's a rough sport, with animals used matching the standards of the big-time circuit requirements of the Rodeo Cowboys Associations. It isn't only the males that enter, and girls find just as much excitement in the goat-tying, chicken-chasing or barrel-racing events.

In some colleges, rodeo classes are recognized within the curriculum, but all participants in NCRA events, during the season, must carry at least 12 quarter-hour credits and maintain at least a two-point average (based on a 4-point system, this is equal to a C).

The reward for the pounding and spills each student takes might be cash or special prizes, but each win brings them closer to the finals and, perhaps, an opportunity to work the national circuits for big money.

If not, they still have their training and college degrees to return to within their respective fields.

But during the college years, the weekend action is not surf and sun, but the grimy pleasure of being a campus cowboy—for real.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — NBC had some good shows going for it on Thursday nights last season, so the network has renewed the lineup for another season.

It started with the season's premiere of "Daniel Boone," a diversion for the children's audience.

Then along came "Ironside" with a classy demonstration in its season premiere that an action series really doesn't have to have a big windup shootout or slugging match to keep the audience from shifting to another channel.

"Ironside" was concerned with a matching of wits between a master jewel thief, arrogant and cool, and that wise and canny defender of law and order, Chief Ironside.

Of course there was never any doubt about which one would finally prevail. The thief wanted to steal a jewel collection worth $7 million while it was in transit. Ironside knew a heist was in the wind and took precautions to prevent it.

He handled his assignment by setting up a couple of fake cases of jewels and sending both the fakes and the real jewels off by various methods of transportation. The thief had to pick the vehicle with the real jewels—a nice switch on the old shell game.

After that "Dragnet" came along with its first new show of the season. Both last season and now in this debut, Jack Webb and company seem more interesting in using the half hour to lecture the public on police work and the aims of law enforcement than to tell a story.

Thursday night's show had Sergeant Friday and his sidekick Gannon serving as members of a TV panel discussing "The Fuzz: Who Needs Them?" The moderator and the other two panel members—all very avant garde types with beards—were very much against the buttoned-down police types. But, boy, did Friday and Gannon give them what for!

"Dragnet" is a big drag when it gets on the soap box.

Finally, Dean Martin strolled back on the NBC screen with his usual mix of music and comedy. Nothing else the format has changed except that this season Dean was able to make his entrance by sliding up that fireman's pole instead of down.

His guests were Lena Horne, Zero Mostel—in a couple of sketches that never even touched his talents—and Barbara Heller, who was a favorite for her comedy in Martin's summer series.

Recommended weekend viewing:

Saturday—"Adam 12," premiere, NBC, 7:30-8 p.m. EDT, police stories with Martin Miller as a prowler car cop; "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir," premiere, NBC, 8:30-9 comedy fantasy with Hope Lange and Edward Mulhare as a 100-year-old ghost.

Sunday—"Land of Giants," premiere, ABC, 7-8 p.m. EDT, fantasy about earthlings stranded on a planet of giants; piano concert by Vladimir Horowitz, CBS, 9-10.

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off. Send your teen-age questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help Us! (this newspaper).

YOUNG INVENTOR NEEDS BACKING

Dear Helen: I am 10 years old and have designed (cq) a new kind of telephone and wrote down the patent plans, and sent them to the patent office. They returned them and said I had to change them to 10 x 15 and draw them specific (cq) and then send $65.00 dollars (cq) for the basic fee. So I sent the plans and asked for an honorary (cq) status.

They answered they were sorry they had to return my letter and setch (cq) but rules of the office did not allow honorary (cq) status. Then they said, "We hope that one day soon you will file a complete application for a patent."

I hope so too, but the basic fee is stopping me. My father does not have it to spare and by the time I earn it, somebody else will get on to my idea.

What should I do? — EX-INVENTOR

Dear Inventor: I don't know what your sketch is like, but of this I'm positive: any 10-year-old with gumption enough to design a new telephone, mail it to the patent office, then redesign it according to instructions deserves an audience!

Please send me your name and address and I'll put you in touch with an engineer friend of mine who will tell you whether you idea has a chance. If it has, I'm quite sure you'll find an "angel." At least, you won't get a brush-off from the people I have in mind! — H.

Dear Helen: The letter from writing it in the bathtub. She works well there."

Besides Ingrid, Brigid and Nico, Viva Superstar and Ivy Nicholson were present. International Velvet was in Europe and Ultra Violet was a no-show.

The 200 or so guests, dressed in Indian headbands, dresses that opened to the waist, one wedding gown, a few tuxedos, velvet suits, and dirty blue jeans, sat on the floor of Andy's studio to sip wine—1947 vintage—and eat picnic lunches.

Warhol, a pale man who streaks his hair silver, has decided not to press charges against Valeria Solanis, the 28-year-old actress charged in the shooting that kept him in the hospital for nearly two months. She is undergoing psychiatric treatment.

Nico, a tall redhead who refuses to give her age—"I'm too old to talk about it"—said her album was "like a movie. It has all the senses in it and it is in my line," which is Warhol talk for doing your own thing.

Will it succeed? "Of course. There's very little good music around."

"Bill" rang a bell with me. I always thought I was the only one who lived like a puppet. (I'm a female copy of Bill: intelligent, quite nice looking, popular. But I, a phony, I have a fabulous boyfriend, but what he likes is not me. It's an act I put on. I shudder to think what would happen if one day I started being myself and acting natural (for a change.) I'd probably lose every friend I have.

There's another thing: I talk about "being myself" but now I'm mixed up I don't know what "myself" is. If I know I should feel an emotion for someone's misfortune, me and turn on sympathy. I even have to tell myself to be nice to my boyfriend. I just don't relate to people, so I have to pretend. Is there any hope for me? — ACTRESS

Dear Actress: Honey, you're no different from thousands of young people who search for the answer to "Who am I?" You have become aware of your self-centeredness and you're ashamed of it. And so, of course, you magnify it out of all proportion.

What you don't yet realize is that we're all more interested in ourselves than in anyone else—even those we love. Everyone must pretend a little block out those "self" thoughts that come when we should be thinking of others.

When you stop feeling guilty, you'll be much more able to "relate." Why not discuss this problem with friends? You'll find most join you in wondering, "Am I for real?" — H.

He Didn't Stay Around to See

LEESVILLE, La. (AP) — John Jeter and Alvin Betts were clearing luggage lockers in a bus depot Wednesday when Jeter came across a small brown suitcase stored past the allotted time.

Inside there was a sign that said "explosives" and another that said "mines." Hooked to the labeled packages were a roll of primer and a detonator.

"I said something to Alvin," Jeters said. "I don't remember what it was, but when I turned he wasn't anywhere around. I felt that Alvin had a pretty good idea there."

A demolition squad from Ft. Polk dismantled the device and found the detonator was dead and the containers contained Army C rations.

Snatched Watch Off His Arm

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Jose Ramon Colon Ortiz, 29, celebrating his return from New York, set off a rocket at San Juan International Airport that knocked over the air terminal. Police took him into custody.

This Dog a Jekyll and Hyde

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Some dogs have Jekyll and Hyde personalities, a doctor says.

They stay home in the daytime and join wild packs at night, Dr. R. B. Phillips, chairman of a Georgia Medical Association committee, told a wild dog study committee hearing Wednesday.

The committee heard reports that wild dogs have killed $1.5 million worth of Georgia cattle this year. It is proposing legislation to control the estimated 30,000 unvaccinated strays in Georgia.

One dog lover told the committee: "We love our dogs just as much as you love your cattle. I want you to take this into consideration."

Mini Auction Gallery Opens

NEW YORK (AP) — "It was just marvelous. Two women came in with babies," said a spokesman for the staid, elegant and very expensive Parke-Bernet auction galleries Wednesday.

The occasion was the first sale at PB 84—a sort of "mini" auction gallery opened by Parke-Bernet in a converted garage about 10 blocks from the main establishment.

The aim of PB 84, the spokesman said, "is to bring art and semiarist down to the price level of the ordinary person. It's particularly aimed at young couples."

Prices at regular Parke-Bernet auctions usually run into the thousands. The bottom price at PB 84's debut of furniture was $1, paid by a young man for a set of 15 glasses. The top was $360 for a Charles II-style oak Welsh dresser.

The Blessed Elizabeth Seton was the founder of the American Sisters of Charity.

When there is just one correct way to play a hand it behooves you to find it. If you fail—at least you will have done your best.

See if you can find the correct way to play today's hand without looking over the East and West hands.

There are two rather attractive wrong ways to play it. The first is to duck the heart lead in both hands. This won't cost you anything if a heart is returned but a club shift will prove disastrous.

The second is to win the first heart with your king, run off your diamonds to see what happens and then to lay down the king of spades. This line will succeed if East and West discard badly or if West takes that spade king. Otherwise it will fail.

The correct line of play is to count your tricks carefully. You have seven tricks in top cards and two potential tricks in spades. How can you get those two tricks?

If you could get to dummy twice you could lead up to your hand both times but you are going to reach dummy once and once only. Therefore you can only lead toward your spades that one time.

You study a little more and see the danger of ducking in both hands or of winning that first heart with your king. You go right up with dummy's ace, lead a spade, play your 10 and make your contract because East holds the jack.

Incidentally, we want to commend North's raise to three no-trump. An ace is four points but it looks mighty forlorn all by itself among those deuces and treys and some players might decide to pass.

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Myrna Loy looks with faint amusement at the feverish political activities by film figures in this year's campaigns. She can remember when the practice was not so popular.

The New York-based star has been here for her 103rd movie, "April Fools," with Jack Lemmon, Catherine Deneuve and Charles Boyer. Her only regret over the assignment was that it kept her from attending the Democratic National Convention, where she had hoped to work for her candidate, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy. "I'm still nursing my wounds over his loss," she smiled.

But she suspects that she will be campaigning for Hubert H. Humphrey come fall, "because I'm so concerned with the attack by Nixon and the Republicans on the Judiciary."

Unlike some performers who have recently discovered political consciences, campaigning has long been a way of life for Miss Loy. It is a matter of conviction, since speech-making does not come easy to her; she is naturally shy and soft-spoken. But a political conscience was instilled during her early years.

"When I went back to Montana to bury my mother last year," she said, "I visited the state capital at Helena. They showed me the application my father had made to run for the legislature. He was only about 22 at the time, but he won the election and served one term."

Her father was a Republican, her mother a Democrat; the maternal influence prevailed. When Myrna was a reigning star at MGM in the 1930s, she lent her name to the campaigns of Franklin D. Roosevelt. This did not help her relations with the studio boss, Louis B. Mayer, whose personal hero was Herbert Hoover. She and Mayer had repeated battles.

During that period in Hollywood history, studio heads discouraged political activity by their stars, arguing that it would alienate a large portion of the movie audience. Miss Loy felt the company pressure in one notable instance.

One day in 1938, she and husband Arthur Hornblow were entertaining at their Malibu home. While the guests were frolicking on the beach, Myrna was listening to a radio speech from London by the Czech leader Jan Masaryk, who sadly reported the sell-out of his country at Munich. She was so moved that she dispatched a cable of sympathy to Masaryk.

"After the broadcast, he walked back to his apartment with Ed Murrow and the first message he received was mine," she said. "He sent me a cable of thanks, and he told the press of my message. The news got back to Germany, and my pictures were banned."

She received a sharp reprimand from the New York sales department of MGM. But it didn't change her attitude toward political activity.

Her public duties became intensified after her departure from MGM. In 1950, Secretary of State Dean Acheson appointed her member-at-large on the U.S. commission of UNESCO, and she served for three and a half years. She campaigned with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt for Adlai Stevenson in 1956, and has served as co-chairman of the Advisory Council of the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing.

Miss Loy believes the advent of other show business personalities to politics this year is a healthy sign. She herself plans to confine her activities to non-elective posts. "I've had offers to run for office in New York, but that's not for me," she said firmly.

FEEDING THE PIGEONS in St. Mark's Square is a tradition for visitors to Venice, Italy, and actress Gina Lollobrigida proves to be no exception to the rule.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

When Dentures Plague, Dentist Has the Answers

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: My dentures bother me all the time. They clack and I almost lose them when I talk excitedly and laugh. I find denture pastes are such a nuisance and they're crummy. Besides I understand they can harm the gums. Is it true that some people can never be fitted with dentures because their facial bone structures are not right?

ANSWER—Some dentists maintain that they have never seen any patients who can't be properly fitted with dentures. At least their numbers must be small and dwindling even farther because of new techniques, such as denture implants.

Clacking dentures are usually due to porcelain teeth. Plastic teeth properly adjusted will eliminate clacking. Laughing, talking excitedly and shouting are anathema to full dentures because of violent distortions of the tongue and facial muscles and because air is forced under the dentures, breaking the suction.

As temporary aids denture powders and pastes can be useful, but continued use can produce harmful results in some mouths. Anyway, they are not necessary if dentures fit properly.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: My dentures were recently refitted and seem to fit very well. But I have one annoying trouble—they come together before I expect them to. When I talk certain sounds make them touch too soon, and when I swallow they meet with a click. I don't seem to be able to open my mouth as much as before.

ANSWER—The symptoms you describe are usually due to an "open bite." It's caused when the relines is made too thick. This raises or thickens "dentures," thus "reducing" the space between upper and lower teeth.

Correction can sometimes be effected by reducing the bite, but usually all excess plastic pink material under each denture must be removed and the dentures relined. Sometimes it's necessary to reset the teeth.

Bobcats Whip Leopards 30 to 7 For First Victory

Hope Star Sports

Hope Offense Gets 330 Yds. DeQueen, - 31

Bobcats were offside and it was wiped out. Then late in the first period DeQueen blocked a Hope punt and took over at the Bobcat 27. Two plays moved it to the 16, and HB Twain Wilson then swept in for the tying six-pointer with 1:42 still left in the opening segment. Jackie Bell kicked the game into a 7-7 tie, but that was all for DeQueen.

By: RALPH ROUNTON
Star Sports Writer

Winning football returned to Hope last night after a prolonged absence, and there's a good chance it's here to stay. In a beautiful exhibition of teamwork the Hope Bobcats scored in every quarter and smashed the DeQueen Leopards 30-7 in Hammons Stadium.

From the first buzzer to the last, Bobcats were learning how to score touchdowns, and in the weirdest of ways. Two TD's were even called back by penalties, or it might have been worse. But the most important result was that the Bobcats came out of it with the big win, and they are quite proud of it.

It was also another fine defensive show by the Bobcats, who dropped DeQueen quarterbacks for 74 yards in losses and gave up an outstanding minus 31 yards rushing to the Leopards. They picked up 31 yards passing, though, to round out to a straight zero total offense.

On the opening kickoff, Massanelli took the ball and handed off to sophomore scatback Gary Wheelington, and Gary had clear sailing ahead. Ninety yards for the TD he ran, and Hope was on the scoreboard for the first time this year and only 17 seconds gone. Ronny Brown booted the first of his four PAT's, and it was 7-0.

A moment later Wheelington returned a punt 60 yards, but the Bobcat Jerry McWilliams returned the ensuing kickoff 80 yards for an apparent TD, but he was ruled stopped at the Hope 18. Then the teams settled into a punting duel that lasted until late in the half.

Then a short punt and a good return by Rodney Jones set up the Bobcats at the Leopards' 30-yard stripe with 1:30 left in the half. On first down Massanelli fired an 18-yard strike to slot end David Still at the twelve, and on the next play he found Still again for the touchdown, with 0:51 on the clock. Brown kicked the PAT, and the Bobcats carried a 14-7 margin into the dressing rooms at halftime.

Our punting duel continued into the third period, until the Bobcats determinedly took over at their own 36 after seven minutes of play. Picking up first downs on long gainers and a 38-yard pass play to Rodney Jones, the Bobcats drove to the five, where it was third and goal.

Quarterback Massanelli sprinted out to the right, but saw no one open. So he tucked the pigskin tight and outdistanced his followers into the end zone, with 48 seconds left in the quarter. Brown kicked it through, and it was 21-7 with a confident Hope team now knowing they could drive to a touchdown.

After being held on downs at the DeQueen 20, when Wheelington had gone 32 yards for a TD only to have it nullified, the Leopards put in a new signal-caller in Ron Fisher. On second down Fisher retreated too far, and Jim Singleton and Carroll Beck nailed him in the end zone for a safety. Now there was 8:13 left in the game, and Hope had 'em 23-7.

A clipping penalty on the free kick pushed the Bobcats back to their own 36 again, and all they did was drive 64 yards again for the final score. Now Larry Massanelli was passing like a pro, and his selection of plays was letter-perfect. His best call came on a third and one situation at the DeQueen 10, when Larry lobbed a quickie pass to end John Kemp, who wasn't even touched as he romped for joy at the TD. Brown's kick made it 30-7, with 4:33 left, and now it was time to substitute.

What a great morale victory it was, evening the Bobcats' slate at 1-1. Jim Singleton played very well at defensive end for the injured Mike Monrow, and Kemp showed he could play split end by napping two passes for 17 yards and a TD. Larry McWilliams, Mickey Allen, Jimmy Alford, Beck, Brown, and Mike McQueen all were outstanding on defense.

Rodney Jones led all carriers with 76 yards on 12 trips, followed closely by Jerry McWilliams with 11 for 40 yards. Wheelington ran 13 times for 32 yards and Alford effectively gained 27 yards on six attempts. Larry Massanelli, who also passes for 140 yards, ran three times for twelve yards and a touchdown.

David Still was the leading receptionist with 3 for 50 yards, but Rodney Jones caught 2 for 65 yards. Hope's ball control showed, too, with 69 play to DeQueen's 46. It's just a happy day in Bobcat land.

Now the Cats face their first 4-AA opponent next Friday night in the Smackover Buckaroos, who tamed the Bobcats 8-0 at Hammons Stadium last year. But this is another year, and Hope will be going all out plus a little more just to spoil Smackover's homecoming. Try to make plans to go, because you'll be mighty glad you did.

Major Leaguers Pick Best in '68

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Writer

NEW YORK—(NEA)—There has been much wagging of heads and tongues during this The Year of the Paper Batter. Criticisms have been hurled at baseball for its imbalance of fine pitching and fusty hitting.

The Tigers' Denny McLain, however, is not one of those critics. "Look at the records," he said recently. "Only a few pitchers are having really extraordinary seasons." McLain is one of those pitchers. The most extraordinary, in fact, according to his peers voting in the special annual poll conducted by Newspaper Enterprise Association to choose the All-Player All-Star baseball team.

The analysis by McLain stands up when the ballots are perused. Only five other pitchers were even mentioned in the category "Starting pitcher." Two, Bob Gibson of St. Louis spark for Southern California as the second-ranked Trojan travel to Minnesota, No. 16, Texas, No. 4, might have still more problems with No. 11 Houston, which opened its season last week with a rout over Tulane.

Other top teams in action include Penn State, No. 10, which hosts Navy, and 15th-ranked Indiana, last year's Cinderella club, which goes against visiting Baylor.

UCLA, No. 16, without Helmsman Trophy winner Gary Beban, tackles hopeful Pittsburgh at home Saturday night.

Northwestern takes on 19th-ranked Miami of Florida in Florida tonight.

O.J. Simpson, like Keyes another holdover All-American might have to provide plenty of and Juan Marichal of San Francisco, pressed McLain in the voting, with Gibson getting the edge for second. Jerry Koosman of the Mets, Luis Tiant of Cleveland and Don Drysdale of Los Angeles received a slim scattering of votes.

Bill Freehan, McLain's batterymate, was selected as baseball's top receiver. Giant first baseman Willie McCovey, who may lead the league in both homers and runs-batted-in, was the top vote-getter. The rest of the honor team has Tommy Helms of Cincinnati at second base, Brooks Robinson of Baltimore at third, Jim Fregosi of the Angels at shortstop, Pete Rose of Cincinnati, Curt Flood of St. Louis and Ken Harrelson of Boston in the outfield, and Phil Regan of the Cubs as relief pitcher.

A testimonial and review of the team will be presented by Sandy Koufax in his pregame show preceding the nationally televised Game of the Week on the NBC network Saturday, Sept. 28, 2 p.m. EST. NEA executive editor Murray Olderman will participate.

In voting for NEA (and name your paper), the players crossed league boundaries to select the 10 finest men in the game, with the single stipulation that they could not vote for men on their own teams.

The team is split between five National Leaguers and five American Leaguers. Two teams, the Tigers and Reds, placed two players each.

Only one player repeated, Fregosi. Interestingly, neither McCovey, Helms, Harrelson, McLain nor Regan received a single vote last year. Carl Yastrzemski of Boston and Orlando Cepeda of St. Louis, who polled over 300 votes apiece last year, received only a handful between them in the 1968 balloting.

Cincinnati catcher John Bench made the best showing of any rookie. He finished second to Freehan.

Despite McLain's assertion that pitchers in general are really not so super this year, a case can certainly be made for the feebleness of hitters. There may be less than five .300 hitters in the National League, and possibly none in the American. Even on the All-Star team, only Rose is a certain .300 batter. McCovey is struggling to make it. That's all.

Power hitting is a bit better. Harrelson, Freehan, McCovey and Robinson have found the fences consistently and have come through with runners on.

If this year's balloting is any indication, there seems to be an evolution in baseball. Stars like Henry Aaron of Atlanta, Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh and Bill Mazeroski of Pittsburgh, all on last year's inaugural star team, received a minimum of votes. As did Mickey Mantle and Willie Mays.

"New" faces in this The Year of the Paper Batter have risen to dominance. And 24-year-old Dennis Dale McLain stands above them all.

The Money Games

Several years ago, when Joe Kuharich was coaching at Notre Dame, one of his young players wanted to quit the football squad and study for the priesthood. Joe talked him out of it. The kid went on to become the varsity quarterback and a Heisman Award winner. Now John Huarte's back with Kuharich as his quarterback with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Maybe nobody noticed, but when Grayson Kirk resigned as president of Columbia University, there went the last of the original signers of the Ivy League pact outlawing spring practice in football. Time to re-evaluate? . . .

Before Gary Player went out to play two rounds of golf and collect $50,000 for his effort, in the recent World Series of Golf, he told some dinner companions, "I'm still amazed to be thinking I'm playing for this kind of money. I started out in South Africa making $80 a month." . . . His companions, noting that Gary hadn't even bothered to wear a tie, said, "You still dress like you're making $80 a month." . . . (Note: actually, the little South African's a natty dude, despite his all-black outfits on the course.) . . .

Julius Boros put the money-making potential in golf in true perspective: "If it weren't for this game, Lee Trevino would be selling tacos in Texas, I'd still be a bookkeeper in Hartford, Conn., and Nicklaus and Palmer would be piloting prop planes." . . .

Sometimes you wonder why the guys even bother to play for a living. Lance Alworth, the flashy flanker of the San Diego Chargers, is well on his way to being a millionaire after a lucrative stock option deal with a fried chicken syndicate. He has also gone into the singing business, having cut his first folk record . . . and now Denny McLain, having just become a cover boy, is ready to peddle his life's memoirs at the grand old age of 21. . . .

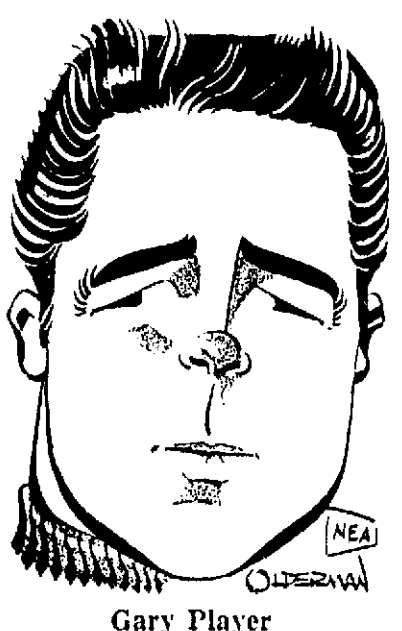

McLain, by the way, frowns at the traditional measure of a pitcher's effectiveness—earned run averages. Not that Denny's got anything to be ashamed about—he's right up among the American League leaders in stinginess. "But they pay off," he says, "on how many you win." . . .

In the San Diego Chargers' AFL opener against the Cincinnati Bengals, all-league offensive tackle Ron Mix was called for holding and the Chargers were penalized 15 yards. It was only the second holding penalty called against Mix in his nine-year pro career. . . .

Before Bob Corham resigned as the PGA press field secretary and took on his new duties as public relations chief for the Kentucky Derby, he fully intended to go with the tournament players splinter group if a job were offered him. . . .

When George Sauter Jr. came into pro ball, he was a shy crewcut kid who refused to make any public appearances. Now, as an all-pro split end with the New York Jets, he wears long blond hair and sideburns, sports turtle-necks, has consented to a speaking engagement . . . Sauter also keeps a complete dossier on every game's performance which he presents to coach Weeb Ewbank. "Weeb's also the general manager," he explains, "and I haven't signed my contract yet." . . .

Between you'n'me, Pancho Gonzalez doesn't concede that old age stops him in tennis, only fatigue. "When you're tired," he sighs, "the ball looks like six of them coming at you, and you don't know which to hit." . . .

The Tail Wagged The Dog

It seemed from the news report that the American campus scene last term consisted entirely of demonstrations. The National Student Association decided to check the number by counting both demonstrations and demonstrators between last January 1 and June 15. The results:

There were 221 major demonstrations at 101 colleges and universities, involving 38,911 student participants. Demonstrating professors were counted in 18 cases. Columbia University wasn't tallied because the study group found it "too difficult to categorize."

Race conflicts got the blame for 97 incidents and student craving for power for 50. But the most amazing statistic culled out of the study is that all the commotion was caused by only 2.6 per cent of the students enrolled in the schools studied.

The same day that this report was published, Dr. Andrew W. Cordier, acting president at the "too difficult" Columbia, answered the question of meeting with rebel leaders there with the observation that "they don't talk to anyone." But every trio of such rebels managed to disrupt the college careers of 97 less demonstrative students. Truly a case of the tail wagging the dog. - Tampa (Fla.) Tribune

Dental Problem Is No Mystery

A study of teeth has shown that girls who drop out of grade school have fewer cavities and better teeth than those who finish college.

This may puzzle the dental and dietary experts, but not the parents of college girls. It is easy to deduce that putting the bite on Dad is terrible for teeth. - San Antonio (Tex.) Express

Girl-Watchers Get Out of Hand a Bit

NEW YORK (AP) — The girl-watchers of Wall Street got out of hand Thursday.

Brokers and clerks in the financial canyons of lower Manhattan had been noticing Francine Gottfried, 21, for a couple of weeks. Clad in tight sweater and skirt, she would emerge from a particular subway exit around 1:30 p.m. and head for her job as an IBM machine operator.

The word got around and the crowds began to increase. Thursday, as though someone pulled a switch, the "bulls" and "bears" turned into "wolves."

Miss Gottfried emerged from the subway, about 5,000 brokers, bankers and clerks were waiting along the young lady's line of march to the Chemical Bank of New York Trust Co.

The crowds were thick along sidewalks and in the narrow streets. Those males unable to make it down to street level peered from windows. One man was on a roof. Photographers were out in force.

Miss Gottfried, a 5-foot-4 brunette, had chosen to wear a yellow sweater and red skirt.

Suddenly a cheer went up from the massed males, and the mob crowded around her, many asking for autographs.

Word of the impending scene had spread to police, who managed to steer the besieged girl into a nearby building, out a back door, and to her office by a circuitous route.

Miss Gottfried, who lives in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn and measures 43-25-37, was bewildered by it all.

"I think they're all crazy," she said. "What are they doing this for? I'm just an ordinary girl."

Doctor Has Perfect Health

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Dr. Arnulfo Arias, president-elect of Panama, was told by his American doctor here Thursday that he is in perfect health.

The 67-year-old Arias, who assumes the presidency of his country Oct. 1, came to New Orleans' Ochsner Foundation clinic for a five-day checkup.

Arias smiled at the physician, longtime friend Dr. Alton Ochsner, and said, "This is good news. Now I am ready to take the bull by the horns."

Figures Most Parents Need Advice Just the Same as Teenagers Do

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

Much has been written to and about teen-agers by evangelist Dave Wilkerson, who brought his Crusade to the Hope Coliseum last spring. They will be happy to know he has not forgotten their parents. They need some advice, too, he feels.

Writing on the topic, "Parents on Trial," he said, "Teen-agers themselves have given me some positive tips on how to give your kids a chance, and I would like to pass them on to you. In the language of the youngsters themselves, it is colorful jargon indeed but quite to the point, as you will see:

1. "Keep your cool." Don't lose your temper in every crisis.
2. "Don't get hung up on a jag that keeps you away from home."
3. "Don't get strung out." Stay

Drugs for Men Developed

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Development of drugs that allow men to remain infertile for long periods may be the best approach to birth control, suggests Dr. Irvin H. Kaiser, professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Utah.

away from liquor and sleeping pills.

4. "Bug me a little." Use strict but loving discipline.
5. "Don't blow your class."
6. "Light me a candle." Show your children the way to faith.
7. "Take the world off my shoulders." Share your children's problems.
8. "Scare the hell out of me."

Rents Home

NEW YORK (AP) — The city's Board of Estimate agreed Thursday to rent a harpsichord factory to house derelict and homeless women now staying in a Bowery hotel, most of whose tenants are male.

The city Department of Social Services rents about 30 rooms a night to the women and the State of New York — which foots part of the bill — has objected to the practice.

Little Old Lady Laid to Rest

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — "The little old lady in tennis shoes from Pasadena" is being laid to rest by the city embarking today on a 44-day festival of progress.

The mythical lady was created by comedian Jack Benny on an early radio show. A conning used-car salesman would hook the bargain-conscious Benny by selling him a car driven only by "a little old lady in tennis shoes from Pasadena."

Her will is going through actual probate. It bequeaths her rocking chair to Red Skelton, her shawl to Jonathan Winters, and a collection of old bottles to Dean Martin.

"She's a symbol of our past now," said a city spokesman.

Mother of Two Named Cantor

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Rita Shore, 26, a Miami mother of two girls, will be the cantor for the high holy days beginning Sunday night in Temple Judea, Coral Gables.

Women for thousands of years were segregated in Jewish temples. Only in recent years have they been given equal representation with men in some cases.

"She's a natural," said Rabbi Morris A. Kipper. "Frankly, I have never heard any cantor give the rendition of the classical liturgical works that Rita does."

The congregation has been without a cantor, and after the New Year holy days will vote on making Mrs. Shore the regular cantor.

Czechs Hope To Bargain With Kremlin

By GENE KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia's liberal leaders continued their visit to the provinces today, hopeful that the cheers they draw demonstrate a national solidarity that will give them a bargaining wedge in upcoming talks with the Kremlin. Their visit today to Ostrava, a city of 250,000 in the coal, iron and steel region of Czech Silesia, followed a triumphant visit Friday to the International Industrial fair at Brno, Czechoslovakia's second largest city.

President Ludvik Svoboda, reformist Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek, Premier Oldrich Cernik, National Assembly President Joseph Smrkovsky and Slovak Communist party leader Gustav Husak were cheered by thousands in the streets of Brno and at the fair.

Dubcek and Cernik appear today at a workers' mass meeting at Ostrava.

The provincial tour came after postponement of talks in Moscow originally expected this weekend.

Informed sources said Dubcek would probably lead a delegation of party and government officials to Moscow Monday or Tuesday to ask the Soviets to begin withdrawing the more than 500,000 troops who occupied the country a month ago.

Prague Radio reported 100 per cent of 864 citizens queried in a poll at Usti, North Bohemia, said they favored the departure of the occupation forces.

It added that 783 expressed full confidence in the Dubcek leadership, 671 were convinced that Dubcek's policy of reforming and liberalizing hard-line communism should be continued and 526 accepted the Moscow agreement as the only way out of a difficult situation. The date of the poll was not given.

At Brno, fairgoers crowded so densely around their leaders that white-haired President Svoboda said, "We could see nothing except a large number of lovely people."

Meanwhile, in Warsaw, the Polish Foreign Office said a drunken Polish soldier on a shooting spree killed two Czechoslovak civilians and wounded five others in Jicin, Bohemia, on Sept. 7.

A spokesman said the killing of the man and a woman was an "isolated incident, the only one to date."

The soldier, he said, will be tried by Polish court martial. He added that the incident was not reported earlier because it might have damaged the normalization of Polish-Czechoslovak relations.

In Restia, Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu made a plea for East-West cooperation to cut the danger of a cold war in Europe.

Whites Leave School When Integrated

GOULD, Ark. (AP) — Most of the white students have stayed away from classes since this Arkansas River delta community opened its schools Sept. 2 under U.S. Supreme Court orders to abolish its dual school system.

Rather than be outnumbered by Negroes in public schools, the whites await the scheduled Oct. 1 opening of a hastily organized private school.

The Southeast Academy was founded after the Supreme Court told Gould and two other school districts in May that freedom-of-choice desegregation plans weren't acceptable if integration could be achieved more quickly by some other method.

Under the Gould school board's freedom-of-choice plan, 70 of the district's more than 500 Negroes chose to attend school where 250 whites attended last year. After the court order, the board merged its Negro and white schools. School Supt. Raymond Sage said Thursday the district now had 83 white students and 549 Negroes.

Some white students have established residence in other school districts, but about 125 say they will attend Southeast Academy when it opens.

Electric Line To Be Rebuilt

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Public Service Commission said Thursday the Southwestern Electric Power Co. had permission to rebuild or reroute 5.5 miles of transmission lines in Sebastian County and build a substation in the county near Bonanza.

The PSC also gave permission to Benton County Telephone Co. to borrow $500,000 from Bankers National Life Insurance Co. and sell 8,250 shares of $20 par value common stock to its parent firm, Continental Telephone Co.

Equal Time Bill Called Political

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bill to make televised debates possible between presidential candidates has inched forward in a House committee amid charges that the issue is becoming a political football.

There also was speculation Thursday that even if the Senate-passed measure finally wins approval in the House the debates may never take place.

The House Commerce Committee tacked onto the bill a provision to insure inclusion of third-party candidate George Wallace in any debate between Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey and Republican Richard M. Nixon.

Then it approved the over-all measure 21-10, but scheduled further consideration next week after the ranking Republican protested the precise wording.

The move by Rep. William L. Springer of Illinois prompted the comment from Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W. Va., that the issue has "turned into a political situation completely."

He and Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., suggested Springer's move amounted to a delaying tactic and that Nixon does not want to debate.

The bill would suspend requirements that radio and television stations or networks who provide time to one candidate also provide it to all others competing for the same office.

Suspension of the law in 1960, led to the historic debates between Nixon and John F. Kennedy.

Inclusion of Wallace drew praise from Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Stanton said Wallace had emerged, according to polls, "as an important force in this fall's campaign."

"We believe the electorate should be given the opportunity to compare first hand his views on the critical issues of this campaign with those of the candidates of the Democratic and Republican parties," Stanton said in a statement.

Should the modified bill clear committee it then faces House debate and later conference with the Senate.

Nixon has said he would be willing to debate Humphrey, but not in a three-way meeting with Wallace. Humphrey has indicated he would go along with a three-way debate.

If the bill passes, however, and Nixon sticks with his position some sources suggest Humphrey might refuse to debate Wallace alone.

Evangelist Was Colorful

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham wore orange slacks, a green shirt and yellow shoes for a round of golf with friends Thursday.

Graham said the yellow shoes had been admired by President Johnson recently.

"The next time I was in New York, I bought a pair of them in Mr. Johnson's size in every color or available — six, I think — and sent them to him," Graham said.

Graham, a Charlotte native, is being honored by his hometown with a "Billy Graham Appreciation Day."

Nomination Of Fortas Is Doubtful

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leader in the fight to block Abe Fortas' nomination as chief justice says the White House is trying to make it seem as though opposition is based on anti-Semitism.

"The White House, indirectly and directly, is trying to stir this up and make it a big issue, even though there is no basis for it," Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., told newsmen Friday.

"I think it's emanating right from the White House," he said. "It's flopped and backfired on them, but they are still trying."

There was no immediate comment from the White House which Griffin has accused in the past of bringing extraordinary pressure to bear in Fortas' behalf.

As Griffin got in some final licks against the nomination before debate starts next week, Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., put out a speech defending Fortas, who would become the first Jewish chief justice if confirmed.

Hart, who did not deliver the speech before the Senate adjourned, said examination of Fortas' record in Supreme Court obscenity decisions "clearly refutes the charge he favors smut."

Meeting with newsmen in his office, Griffin said opposition forces now have about 45 votes against invoking the Senate's debate-limiting cloture rule — far more than enough to keep a filibuster going.

He said he didn't think the nomination would ever come to a vote.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, after unprecedented hearings during which a chief justice nominee was questioned by a committee for the first time ever, approved Fortas' nomination Tuesday.

Violence Is Contagious in Mice Too

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A University of Tennessee husband-wife team of researchers has found evidence that mice react to violence by trying to join the action.

Dr. Bruce Welch and his wife, Annemarie, said they found that mice which witnessed violent action experienced a significant increase in the rate of release of a brain chemical that transmits nerve impulses, became excited and tried to join the fight.

Their findings on a series of experiments conducted at the university Memorial and Research Hospital are reported in the proceedings of the National Academy of Science.

The chemical which the Welchses were studying is norepinephrine, a substance released by nerve cells in the brain of man and mouse alike. They say there is evidence that this chemical's production and release in the brain is related somehow to the emotional status of the brain's power.

The Welchses' findings support the theory, long held by many sociologists, that violence is contagious.

"We were primarily interested in determining the role of this chemical in the brain's responses to purely psychological influences," said Welch, who served as organizer for an international symposium on aggressive behavior held recently in Milan, Italy.

For the experiments, the Welchses rigged some mice in a wire basket so they could see some other mice fighting. The Welchses said the noncombattant mice got so excited they tried to gnaw their way through the wire mesh and join the fight.

Analysis immediately following the experiment showed the norepinephrine levels in the lower brain stem of the excited but frustrated observer mice were about 32 per cent below normal.

In other words, Welch said, a lot of norepinephrine stored in mouse brains had been released to perform its nerve impulse functions, for good or ill, simply because the owners of the brains had witnessed violence by others.
